

Hillary Clinton Ripped Over Tweet Urging EU to Police 'Disinformation' and 'Extremism' Online

April 23, 2022

Hillary Clinton, the mastermind behind the now-debunked Russian collusion hoax, wants to lecture people about "disinformation."

It looks like Elon Musk has shaken liberals to their core as they call for more censorship from tech platforms to reduce the spread of "disinformation" and "extremism."

"For too long, tech platforms have amplified disinformation and extremism with no accountability," Hillary said. "The EU is poised to do something about it."

This immediately sparked backlash against Hillary's "tyrannical impulse." Actor Adam Baldwin responded, "No, your totalitarian impulse is wrong. Best and least restrictive practice is for the free market to distill and decide ideas. GTFO of the way!" Take a look:

Adam Baldwin ✓
@AdamBaldwin

No, your totalitarian impulse is wrong.

Best and least restrictive practice is for the free market to distill and decide ideas.

GTFO of the way!

Hillary Clinton ✓ @HillaryClinton · 19h

For too long, tech platforms have amplified disinformation and extremism with no accountability. The EU is poised to do something about it.

I urge our transatlantic allies to push the Digital Services Act across the finish line and bolster global democracy before it's too late.

10:23 PM · Apr 21, 2022 · Tweetbot for iOS

"The autocrats want to think for you. No thanks," American Greatness contributor Thaddeus McCotter replied.

The Federalist co-founder Sean Davis said, "You[sic] former campaign lawyer is under federal indictment for lying to the FBI about the Russiagate hoax that your campaign funded. Sit down."

Conservative author Kimberly Morin responded to Clinton's post, asking, "You know all about DISINFORMATION, don't you?"

The Washington Times columnist and comedian Tim Young tweeted out his own interpretation of Hillary's words, "Translated: Restrict the First Amendment so that Democrats can control the narrative without challenge."

"Once they called the revelations from Hunter's laptop 'disinformation' they made it clear the word simply means 'stuff damaging to Democrats.' It shocks me that journalists take cries of 'disinformation' seriously still," author and Washington Examiner columnist Tim Carney tweeted about tech platforms censoring the Hunter Biden laptop story in 2020.

Carney continued: "...and so we know exactly what the below [Hillary's tweet] means. Democrats want to use the force of the government to push Big Tech to censor news and commentary that makes them look bad."

The Media Research Center's Vice President of Free Speech America and Business Dan Gainor drew a connection to the reaction to Elon Musk's bid to buy Twitter, tweeting, "@elonmusk has scared the left so much they now want more government control of speech."

"Like her co-conspirator Obama, Hillary Clinton also wants the government to regulate and censor speech she doesn't like," Judicial Watch President Tom Fitton tweeted, referencing the former president's recent initiative to counter "disinformation" online.